Application Support

Each year the U.S. makes available 140,000 immigrant visas for employment based immigration categories. We represent academics and researchers in preparing EB-1 Extraordinary Ability and EB-2 National Interest Waiver petitions. These petitions allow established researchers to self-sponsor their green cards based on the merit of their work.

We also support public and private sector employers in sponsoring their employees for green cards through the EB-1 Outstanding Professor & Researcher category and EB-2 Labor Certification. If you are seeking an EB-1 or EB-2 green card, we will help you determine the best option. Our initial consultations for academics and researchers are free of charge.

Changes in the U.S. visa system have resulted in new challenges in obtaining visas for foreign scholars and researchers. In order for the U.S. to remain at the forefront of scientific discovery, we assist Academics, Researchers and their institutions in identifying insightful and creative strategies for visa sponsorship. H-1B is the most common visa category utilized by U.S. employers to sponsor employees for work authorization. A lesser known option for established researchers and scholars is the O-1 visa, which provides work authorization for those that can demonstrate high-level research contributions in any field.

We work with International Student Offices, Academic Departments, corporations and laboratories to prepare supporting documents associated with EB-1 Extraordinary Ability and Outstanding Professor & Researcher petitions. Drafting letters of support, research and citation analysis, and organization of the materials that will eventually be filed by an employer or University on behalf of a foreign national requires an experienced team. We have the knowledge and expertise to ensure correct and thorough preparation of complex EB-1 and EB-2 petitions. We work with employers in all 50 states and Researchers and Scholars in all industries. Contact us for a free consultation regarding the ways that we can support you through your immigration process.
